Shopping Jots.

Because impetuous buyers abound at this special period we don't tack on extra profits.
The usual low price level is firmly maintained.
Quantities and varieties that would bewilder, were it not for the system and orderliness with which they are displayed.
You may have one or twenty presents to buy, and come here without a single clear idea.
The merchandise on view appeals to every need, and idea will follow idea with marvellous rapidity. That's not all. Oftener than not the "appropriation" made for gift things will not be exhausted when you've chosen and paid.

Diamond Jewelry.

We have a magnificent stock of Diamond Jewelry. It's well worth remembering.

We do not claim that our Diamonds are intrinsically superior to those sold elsewhere. That would be more foolish.
Our plan for your preference is based on the fact that we secured our Diamonds at very low prices and are selling them on exceedingly narrow margins. Many another dealer would consider four times our profit fair merchandising, however, we sell diamonds just as we do everything else—as low as possible.

CREW STICKS TO DISMASTED SHIP

Almost Starved Fishermen Accept Food, but Decline Rescue.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 18.—The Allan line steamer Corcoran, Capt. Stewart, which sailed from Philadelphia Dec. 12 for this port and Glasgow and which arrived here last night, reports that while off Baid Island Saturday she sighted the Gloucester (Mass.) fisherman Anglo-Saxon, with a crew of fourteen men, flying a signal of distress.
The vessel had been damaged in Wednesday's hurricane and lost spare sails, rigging, deck gear, dories, watercocks and everything movable. The Anglo-Saxon was on her beam ends for six hours and all the provisions on board were spoiled.
The crew had been on deck without food for forty-eight hours when discovered by the steamer.
The Corcoran supplied stores sufficient

LONG SEARCH FOR FIRE.

Tenement Dwellers Smelled Smoke and at Last Found Blame.

Ten families in the five-story double tenement at 167 Seventh avenue were in dread of an outbreak of fire from a clock last night until 1 o'clock this morning. Then their fears were realized.
Janitor Edward Heitz smelled smoke, but could find no trace of fire.
Some hours later he got a fireman from Hook and Ladder Company No. 12.
They discovered the blaze in the rear of 17th Street's butcher shop, on the ground floor. No damage was done.
